Search tips

- For title and journal title searches, remove 'the' or any other leading article
- For author searches, use surname then forename (for example Rankin Ian)
- For keyword searches, use quotes to search phrases: "world wide web"

Source Consulted	Wikipedia, July 26, 2013 (Philip K. Dick; Philip Kindred Dick; born December 16, 1928 in Chicago; died March 2, 1982 in Santa Ana, Calif.; American novelist, short story writer and essayist whose published work is almost entirely in the science fiction genre. Dick explored sociological, political and metaphysical themes in novels dominated by monopolistic corporations, authoritarian governments, and altered states. He often drew upon his own life experiences in addressing the nature of drug abuse, paranoia, schizophrenia, and transcendental experiences in his novels. Dick had two articles published under the pen names Richard Phillipps and Jack Dowland. Many of his works have been adapted into films the best known is Do Androids Dream of Electric Sheep? (1968) the literary source of the film Blade Runner (1982)) other films based on his stories include, Minority report, Total recall, The adjustment bureau, etc.)	8.12
